See draft bid narrative.

Note: current issue → When a draft bid is created accidentally or for testing purposes, you can never get rid of them.

Draft Bid

We would like this to be enhanced greatly. The current method is cumbersome and requires staff to pull over all items in a item number range and then select the items that they wish not to include in the draft bid.

Brand information in this section doesn't work correctly. The information is pulled from the current production data in File Maintenance. However, if changes are made in item descriptions, approved brands, etc. when the bid is closed and prepared for award in Award Contract, the item information pulls in again from File Maintenance rather than from the updated information in Draft Bid.

Bid Solicitation

We would like distributors and or manufacturers to have the ability to bid in the bid solicitation in a spreadsheet rather than in an individual page that is generate for each item. If a current distributor is bidding in the current system for all items in all 7 regions, that would mean several entries on as much as 500 pages X 7 regions. We would like the distributor to be able enter pricing in for an items and choose which regions that would apply to. That way if he wishes to use the same pricing for say Region 1 and 2 he would just indicate that on the spreadsheet and the system would generate separate identical bid worksheets for those two regions. There would be certain required fields in each bid for each item. Bidders would not be able to complete and submit the bid until all required fields have been completed.

We would like the bid solicitation to be true on-line bidding. This would require appropriate security measures to protect pricing from other bidders and all screen the pricing from OCN staff until the bid opening time. We would like the system to generate a paper bid which must be printed with appropriate signature lines on each page. This step would have to be made prior to submission of the bid on line. Once the bid is solicited, however, the individual vendors bid would remain in a locked setting to all vendors (including the vendor that submitted the bid) and to OCN staff.

At bid opening date and time, the OCN staff would use the paper bids for the public bid opening and for verification purposes in case of a bid challenge or other questions. Once the bid has been opened the OCN would verify all facets of the submitted, successful bid for accuracy and for responsiveness to the bid specifications.

Once the bid has been verified the successful bid would then move into "Contract Award."

On Contract Award – the updated, new bid information would over write current information in the system for each region and each item for which it is applicable. It updates all tables in File maintenance, order entry and distributor contract sections of the system.
